LOCAL BUSINESS LEADERS VOLUNTEER TO TEACH AT MARKETPLACE FOR KIDS

Jamestown, ND (March 31, 2010) – Local business leaders are giving back to the community as they volunteer their time to instruct students at the Marketplace for Kids Education Day at Jamestown College on Friday, May 7, 2010.

“Marketplace for Kids is a unique educational program designed to develop young entrepreneurs,” said Pete Carvell and Patricia Schlenker, Co-Chairs of the Region 6 Marketplace for Kids Advisory Leadership Team. “Marketplace for Kids demonstrates the special role of youth in improving the economic future of our state. What better way to learn than from the business leaders themselves?”

The program targets grades 3 through middle school but is open to all ages. Marketplace for Kids provides a variety of classes and education activities to help young people develop their business skills, enhance personal development, and explore career options.

On the final stop of the Marketplace for Kids statewide tour Marketplace pulls into town with a strong lineup of classes. All of the classes are interactive and many feature hands-on projects which engage young, future entrepreneurs. These specialized classes, taught by local business leaders, are designed to let kids know that you are never too young to start a business. One of the 2010 Marketplace for Kids “core” classes does just that. “Friends of the Forest” will give students the opportunity to learn about agricultural entrepreneurship and sustainability as they build their own pinecone bird feeder. With hands-on experience and take home instructions the kids quickly learn that becoming an entrepreneur is well within their grasp.

The Marketplace for Kids program encourages young people to apply their innovative thinking by creating projects that demonstrate innovation, entrepreneurship, critical thinking, and creative problem solving skills. These projects are on display during the Education Day and open for public viewing from 11:30 a.m. – 12:25 p.m. If students have any questions or need help with their projects, feel free to contact Marketplace for Kids at 888-384-8410 or by email at Marketplace@btinet.net. Helpful hints for projects are also available at www.MarketplaceForKids.org.

ND Department of Career and Technical Education Director Wayne Kutzer serves on the Board of Directors. “The future of North Dakota’s economy – and the future of our nation’s economy – lies in the entrepreneurial spirit of our children,” said Kutzer. “Marketplace for Kids encourages young people to develop their own ideas, to talk about them, and present them to other people. It nurtures their creativity and provides an environment that enables them to grow.”

More than 1,500 people participated in the 2009 Region 6 Education Day. Students, teachers, parents, and community leaders interested in more information or becoming involved in the Marketplace for Kids Education Day should contact Pete Carvell 701-252-3846, Patricia Schlenker 701-252-1950, or Marketplace for Kids at 888-384-8410 (toll free). Information is available online at www.MarketplaceForKids.org.
